

The United States Department of Defense

www.dod.gov

The Department of Defense's (DoD) mission is to provide the military forces needed information to protect the security of the United States. The department's headquarters is at the Pentagon. DefenseLINK is the official Web site for the DoD and the starting point for finding U.S. military information online. Its information includes official, timely, and accurate information about defense policies, organizations, functions, and operations for military members, DoD civilians, military family members, the American public, the Congress, and the news media. DefenseLINK also hosts the DoD Resource locator, a part of the Government Information Locator Service that is intended to help citizens identify, locate, and retrieve information about their government.

The United States Army

www.army.mil

This official Web site for the U.S. Army provides updated news announcements and reports, information on leaders, career management, well-being, references, an extensive site index, and more. Information quick links include Army leadership, Army Reserves, Army National Guard, public affairs, recruiting, retirees, and more. Links are also provided to U.S. Army publications and other services' news.

The United States Navy

www.navy.mil

This is the official Web site for the U.S. Navy, provided by the Navy's Office of Information, Washington, D.C., in cooperation with the Space and Naval Warfare Systems Center Charleston, Pensacola, Fla. The site provides information and news about the U.S. Navy to the Navy community, U.S. citizens, and the media. Information on the site is updated daily, and includes a comprehensive alphabetical index.

The United States Marine Corps

www.usmc.mil

This is the U.S. Marine Corps official Web site where you will find quick links to New From the Front, 2003 Concepts and Programs, the Marine Corps Institute, general officer biographies, Marine Band, and more. Information on the site is directed toward the Marines community, U.S. citizens, and the media. News is updated regularly and includes a photo gallery, press releases, and video archive.

The United States Air Force

www.af.mil

This is the official Web site of the U.S. Air Force. It provides news and information about the U.S. Air Force to the Air Force community, the media, U.S. citizens, and more. News is updated frequently and links are provided to the Air and Space Expeditionary Force Center, the Air Force Media Center, the Air Force Operations Center, Airman magazine, senior leadership, and more.

Defense Information Systems Agency

www.disa.mil

The Defense Information Systems Agency (DISA) is a combat support agency responsible for planning, developing, fielding, operating, and supporting command, control, communications, and information systems that serve the needs of the Department of Defense (DoD) and other government offices. DISA is a provider of integrated information solutions to DoD and non-DoD customers. Today, DISA is in the process of consolidating computer services. By September 2005, DISA computing services will consist of one headquarters component, four production systems management centers, and several optimally staffed processing sites, reducing the workforce by 1,200. DISA has been awarded five Joint Unit Meritorious Service Awards.